An aerial photograph of Mumbai, India, taken during the 'golden hour' of sunset. The foreground is dominated by a dense, sprawling urban landscape with numerous multi-story apartment buildings and smaller structures. A wide, multi-lane highway runs diagonally across the bottom right corner. In the middle ground, a large, flat, open area, possibly a former airport or a large park, stretches across the city. The background features a hazy city skyline with several tall skyscrapers, and a large, prominent mountain (likely the Western Ghats) rises behind the city under a warm, orange-hued sky.

A large group of men, likely members of a marching band or a cultural group, are seen in a parade. They are dressed in white long-sleeved shirts and brown trousers. Each man is holding a long, thin wooden stick or baton, which they are carrying diagonally across their bodies. They are marching in a synchronized fashion on a paved street. In the background, there are lush green trees and some parked vehicles, including a yellow bus and several motorcycles. The scene is captured in a wide-angle shot, emphasizing the scale of the group.
